He was pleased to attend the news conference announcing Alcoa's expansion and glad that the community college was part of the incentive package that helped the company make its decision to invest in this community. He reported that a recent visit to Washington, D.C., to talk with government agencies and legislative offices about the proposed law enforcement training center went very well. District foundations are having a good year, with a gift of land in Muscatine to be announced the next day, a major gift received at Clinton and a gala to celebrate SCC's 45th anniversary scheduled for next month. He reported that the District is doing what it needs to do to continue to serve eastern lowans in light of decisions made by Iowa Workforce Development to close offices in the region. He announced that Dr. Jeff Armstrong, president of MCC, has accepted a two-year assignment to serve full-time in his role as vice-chancellor for instruction in order to focus on several important instruction-related initiatives. Bob Allbee will be serving as acting president of MCC during that time. Dr. Doucette soon will conduct a series of forums with faculty and staff to discuss strategic planning goals for the next two years and will bring that discussion to the Board at their October 24 retreat. Finally, he thanked Director Shaw for attending the ACCT conference in Dallas, Texas, and representing EICCD.
